“ I've been on this page many times already, and couldn't post because I'd just cry and be lost for words. People always say that girls and guys can't be best friends, but you and I knew that's far from the truth. The good times we shared were so many between card games, and late nights playing video poker crazyman72, shooting pool as partners at the bar almost every weekend, racing around in the cars, the mudd Boggs, and playing in the mudd 4 wheeling and so many more great crazy times, but I guess the one that will always remind me of you, and will never let me forget you is jumping the big snow pile, that my head crashed up in the roof, and when we landed you with your shit grin and that look in your eyes asks are you okay and busted up laughing and my reply was sure lets do it again!!! Lol.. Till the Er visit later that day where the X-rays confirmed 2 compression fractures in my neck and still the first thing out of your mouth was do you want to do it again, but I shocked you when I said lets do it!! Instead of being a pain in my ass, which you sometimes were your always going to be that pain in my neck. I'll always have you in my heart and will miss you like crazy!!! The boys have good memories of you too, and I'm sorry you and Greg didn't get the chance to work on the 56 international. I'm still in shock that your gone just days after making plans. I'm glad we got to talk about the good times and that I got to see you smiling and laughing again. Until we meet again my friend.... RIP Bo!!!! With love, Kat

“ I remember Bo taking me to school on day when I went to the old Stanton middle school. He had a Chevy s10 and it had hydrolics. I thought I was so cool pulling up to school on 3 wheels. Bo and his cars. That's what he loved. Rest Easy man. Your surely missed and never will be forgiven.
